DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102/103

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-8, 11-14, and 17-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Futamoto et al. (US 6403203).

Futamoto et al. disclose a magnetic recording medium having a substrate, an underlayer for controlling the orientation of the overlying magnetic recording layers formed from a Ti alloy (TiCr), a soft magnetic layer formed from NiFe, multiple perpendicular magnetic layers including a CoCrPt film, a carbon overcoat and a lubricant top layer (see Fig. 6; col. 6, lines 4-9 and lines 37-40; col. 14, lines 2-12; col. 21, lines 50-51). The reference fails to disclose that the

Art Unit: 1773

NiFe soft magnetic layer serves to interrupt crystal grain growth from the underlayer to the perpendicular recording layer as claimed.

It is the Examiner's contention that the NiFe layer taught by Futamoto et al. inherently satisfies this limitation by virtue of the fact that Applicant claims the use of NiFe for this layer and discloses that Ti alloy orientation promoting layers are suitable for use with NiFe underlayers (see claims 2 and 4).

It has been held that where claimed and prior art products are identical or substantially identical, or are produced by identical or substantially identical processes, the burden of proof is shifted to applicant to show that prior art products do not necessarily or inherently possess characteristics of claimed products where the rejection is based on inherency under 35 USC §102 or on prima facie obviousness under 35 USC §103, jointly or alternatively. In re Best, Bolton, and Shaw, 195 USPQ 430. (CCPA 1977).

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 9-10, 15-16 and 19-21 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. The closest prior art to Futamoto et al. fails to teach or suggest the claim limitations directed to a soft magnetic layer between the underlayer and the substrate or between the underlayer and the magnetic layer.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 6/16/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that the combination of a Ti orientation promoting layer with a NiFe layer does not result in the claimed crystal growth discontinuation effect. Applicant's arguments reference a comparative example in the specification to support this position. However, it is noted that Futamoto et al. teach a Ti alloy orientation promoting underlayer in addition to a Ti layer. Absent evidence to the contrary, it is the Examiner's contention that the structure taught by Futamoto et al. having a NiFe layer overlying a TiCr layer inherently produces the claimed crystal growth discontinuation effect.

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
